

Client's Life-Changing Stories

Project: PeaceMakers, has improved my life by giving me good tips and advice I can use for the future. Before attending PPMI, I was struggling with not being very secure in my parenting, as I lacked guidance in the disciplinary department. PPMI has helped me by encouraging me to stick to the rules I set for my daughter and that it's ok to tell her NO. PPMI has impacted me by giving me the tools on learning how to be a better responsible parent. I chose to attend PPMI because it's close to my grandma's house and it is a very soothing environment. It is absolutely worth the fee and worth it to better myself for my child.

My past: 12 hours a day, 4 days a month, 2 hours a visit, supervised visitation by my mother.

I'd like to first thank you all for your time and efforts into assisting me on receiving the certificate of completion for both Anger Management + Parenting/life skills. Over the 30 hours total that I've spent taking the courses required on my days off from work, I was able to practice what I learned during my visitation time with my son. During the last 15 hours of my visitation with my son before our court date, the relationship between my son's mother and I greatly improved from communication, understanding, patience and consistency in practicing what I've learned. My son's behavior also improved from acting out to behaving. I am bonding with my son much further as the days passed he continues to learn living with me and learning his second homes' new rules.

On February 19, 2019, at 7:30 am, I sat in the court hall awaiting my appointment with my son's mother sitting next to me. I was feeling confident that it would go well and when our time came I was extremely fortunate to have sat in front of an understanding judge. My letter of completion and certificates helped the judge understand and approved my case.

In conclusion, after the judge questioned my son's mother, the tables were turned even better. Shortly after, in March 2019, my garnishments vanished. I was finally able to breathe and live a little more comfortably as the workdays went by.

My present: the judge dropped my restraining order and granted me more time with my son: 8 hours a day on my days off (3 days a week) and one-on-one time with my son without any supervision. With the relationship I have with my now girlfriend, I get to spend more time with my family together, after work when possible.

That's it! thank you once again for the lessons you all have taught me that helped reshape my life around for the better. I hope my life's timeline inspires others to improve themselves and to have faith, consistency and work hard to reach their goal.

PPMI has helped me become a better parent. With their services, I believe I can thrive in my parenting skill and become a better person. I was struggling with non-affection towards my son, but PPMI has helped me understand the responsibilities of being a parent and how my affection can affect my son. PPMI has impacted my life by teaching me positive behavior towards my child. I chose PPMI because it was not only a convenient location but for the schedule and price. These classes at PPMI are definitely worth the price because there is no price on becoming a better parent.
